Acknowledgements

While I have been working on this doctoral thesis, Tampere Peace Research Institute (TAPRI) and the University of Helsinki Network for European Studies (NES) have provided me with two very pleasant, relaxed, and peaceful working environments. I would like to thank Tuomo Melasuo, Unto Vesa, Frank Möller, Pirjo Jukarainen, Marko Lehti, Helena Rytövuori-Apunen, Outi Tomperi, Aino Aalto, Alina Curticapean, Andrei Roumiantsev and many other dear taprians for making TAPRI such a cosy intellectual home.

In NES I had the pleasure to share the famous corridor for instance with Teija Tiilikainen, Tero Erkkilä, Jussi Piipponen, Michael Kull, Henri Vogt, Marie-Louise Hindsberg, Juha Jokela, Laura Tuominen, Bart Gaens, Niilo Kauppi, Satu Sundström, Ossi Piironen, Mikko Tyrväinen, Antti Seppo, Leena Malkki, Katri Vallaste, and Ville Vasaramäki. It was not easy to leave you all behind.

Several people have helped me in all sorts of ways over the last years. Firstly, I would like to thank Hanna Ojanen for the encouragement and support she gave when I was taking my first steps as a researcher in the Finnish Institute of International Affairs. I am also very grateful to Hiski Haukkala, particularly for the numerous in-depth conversations until the early hours on International Relations, life, the universe and everything. Thanks also to Juhana Aunesluoma, who as the chair of the Finnish International Studies Association offered me a crash course in the fine art of domestic networking (and demonstrated how to do it with style). I am also grateful to Pekka Haavisto for giving me an opportunity to have a taste of the UN post-conflict environmental field work around Serbia and Montenegro.

My research has been greatly facilitated by a research project titled “Europeanization in Finnish politics and administration” run by NES. The project was funded by Emil Aaltonen Foundation and led in an effective albeit friendly manner by Teija Tiilikainen. As my supervisor, Tiilikainen has not only helped me to develop my ideas further, but also provided invaluable help in finding funding that has enabled me to continue my research work on the theme. I am also grateful to Raimo Väyrynen and Ben Tonra for their substantial comments and criticism on the manuscript of the thesis. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank two Arctic experts, Lassi Heininen and Lotta Numminen for providing me with something else to think about than mere European integration.

I am also most indebted to two very peculiar and innovative societies: FC NuoPa, an exceptionally analytical football club; and Suuri Valliriutta, the most academic of all rock bands. Tuukka Murotie, Hannu O. Korppinen, Ville Reiman; Markus Sommers, Pauli Murto, Tero Erkkilä, Jussi Piipponen, Veikko Kiljunen - Long may you run.

A special thanks to my closest friends Kare Kaasalainen, Rami Saarijärvi for keeping my life in balance. Thanks also to Ari Myllyselkä - our joint musical ventures that have given me a chance to recharge my academic batteries. I would also like to thank my parents for all the love and support they have given me.

And finally, a warm thanks to my wife Virpi, and our three lovely sons Toivo, Aatos and Aukusti for reminding me every day that there are things far more important than International Relations. This book is dedicated to you.
